BALLINGER, SECRETARY OF INTERIOR, HAS RESIGNED

Ill Health Cause of His Action---Walter L. Fisher of Chicago Appointed as Ballinger's Successor.

Washington, March 7.—Richard A. Ballinger's resignation as secretary of the interior, dated January 19 last, was accepted today by President Taft, and Walter L. Fisher, of Chicago, was appointed as his successor, his commission being signed immediately by the president. Mr. Fisher will take office within a few days.

Mr. Ballinger tendered his resignation in a letter on January 19, basing it entirely upon the condition of his health. The president replied at once, expressing his confidence in Secretary Ballinger, his reluctance to accept his resignation; and requested the secretary to remain in office until the close of the session of Congress. Immediately upon the adjournment of Congress, Secretary Ballinger renewed his request that he be relieved at a date suiting the president's convenience, but immediately if possible. Today President Taft in a letter formally accepted the resignation.

HORSE WENT THROUGH BRIDGE; CUT AWAY TO RELEASE ANIMAL

Yesterday afternoon a team of horses belonging to the Power & Armstrong Company broke through a bridge near Gilmer street and the animals were pretty badly skinned and bruised, but fortunately were not seriously hurt. The bridge crosses the branch which passes the power house at a point where the banks of the stream are as high as a horse's head and one of the animals was suspended in mid-air until the bridge could be cut from beneath him so he could fall into the stream.

A load of coal was being taken to a house just across the stream and one of the horses stepped on a weak plank and instantly both hind legs went through the crack thus formed. The animal realized that it could not extricate itself and remained still. The other horse was more fortunate and managed to twist out. A number of people gave prompt assistance, but it required nearly an hour of hard work to cut the bridge down and release the imprisoned animal.

The hind legs of both animals were badly skinned and bruised, but apparently they were all right when gotten in the harness again.

The bridge has been in use for a number of years, but, excepting one plank, was sound. Other teams have frequently passed over the bridge and no one suspected that it was insecure.

CONFINE SPEAKS IN CRIMINAL WARD; COUNTY AUTHORITIES SAY

As was stated in yesterday's Telegram steps are being taken to have Moses Speaks committed to the asylum for the criminal insane at Raleigh without going to the expense of a trial that would probably result in his being sent to the criminal insane ward of the state prison. The solicitor has been asked to agree to this disposition of the case but he has so far refused.

At the last criminal term of court Judge Daniels signed an order requiring the county commissioners to supply counsel for Speaks with sufficient funds to enable them to go to Massachusetts to secure certain records, showing that he was confined in asylums there. It is understood that Solicitor Gattis informed Messrs. Hudson & Swift that certified copies would not be accepted as evidence that Speaks had been confined in asylums for the insane in that State, hence the order of Judge Daniels.

County Attorney Wilson states that in his opinion Speaks is crazy and he is unwilling to assist in the prosecution if first degree murder is asked for. It is generally believed that it would be impossible to secure a jury that would return such a verdict and even after going to the enormous expense of a trial. Speaks would be found guilty of murder in the second degree or not guilty. A verdict of not guilty would be equivalent to saying that he is insane and should be confined in a ward for criminal insane.

The county commissioners meet Monday and it is understood that Solicitor Gattis will meet with them to discuss the matter. The authorities state that a trial would cost from $1,500 to $2,000 and the result would be the commitment of the prisoner to the penitentiary for a number of years or to the criminal insane department for life.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING OF SEVENTH DISTRICT PYTHIANS

About one hundred and fifty representative Pythians from the fourteen lodges representing the seventh district met in regular session last evening in the lodge room of Proximity Lodge, No. 158, Knights of Pythias. The meeting was one of the most largely attended and most enthusiastic, the weather being considered, ever held in the district. The Proximity Pythians extended such a hearty welcome that once inside the lodge room everybody forgot the rough weather on the outside and enjoyed the occasion to the utmost.

It had been announced that a public meeting would be held at 8 o'clock, but this was called off and the delegates met at 9 o'clock in the lodge room of Proximity Lodge with District Deputy Whit R. Stone presiding. The address of welcome was by Rev. W. H. Strickland, of Proximity Lodge, and the response was by L. V. Hobbs, of Spray. Dr. E. C. Murray, of Graham, made an interesting address on "The Principles of Pythian Friendship."

The rollcall of lodges and reports followed and the reports showed that every lodge in the district was in a flourishing condition, there being a substantial increase in membership since the last meeting. The finances of the lodges were in fine condition also.

W. P. Beall, Jr., of Greensboro, was given the second degree, the work being by the Irvin River Lodge, of Spray. This was greatly enjoyed by the Pythians present.

Grand Chancellor A. E. McCausland, of Charlotte, was the principal speaker of the evening and he made a rousing talk on "Good of the Order," in which he pointed out the many ways in which the members could serve the order and benefit brother Pythians.

At 10:45 the Pythians repaired to the banquet hall adjoining where a bounteous feast had been prepared by the Proximity Pythians under the direction of J. J. Phoenix. After all had feasted Mr. Phoenix, who acted as toastmaster, called on a number of prominent Pythians for short talks and the following were among those who responded: McBride Holt, Burlington; J. Scott, Burlington; A. H. Holland, Winston; Mr. Britton, Reidsville; L. V. Hobbs, Spray; Geo. L. Hackney, Lexington; J. F. Scurlock, Proximity; Gardner, Rogers and Wyrick, White Oak; C. C. McLean, Greensboro; E. A. McCausland, Charlotte.

At 12 o'clock the banqueters dispersed after extending a hearty vote of thanks to the Proximity Pythians for the welcome accorded them.

THE LEGISLATURE WILL COMPLETE ITS WORK TODAY

In Session Till After Midnight Clearing Calendar---Many Bills Passed---Will Adjourn Sine Die About Noon.

Raleigh, March 7.—The Legislature was in session until after midnight in order that all business might be disposed of by noon tomorrow. A large number of bills were cleared off the calendar in both branches of the Legislature.

It is thought that the Senate and House will adjourn sine die about noon tomorrow.

Raleigh, March 7.—The Senate convened this morning at 10 o'clock. Prayer by Rev. Dr. O'Kelly, of the First Baptist church.

Senator Baggett secured a reconsideration of the vote by which the Senate last night defeated the bill to increase the salary of the head bookkeeper in the State department of insurance to $1,500 and the bill passed and was ordered enrolled for ratification.

There was a motion by Senator Boyden that the House be informed that the Senate would be ready to adjourn for the session at noon. However, this was withdrawn when experienced members assured the senator from Rowan that adjourned at that hour could not possibly be reached.

A resolution was offered by Senator Graham and passed immediately authorizing the Governor to appoint four members of a national commission for the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of peace among the English speaking people.

A joint resolution was on motion of Senator Hobgood passed to authorize the Governor to take proper steps for the settlement of the dispute as to the North Carolina-Tennessee boundary lines.

A. & Y. Railroad Bill Finally Lost.

Senator Hobgood attempted to secure reconsideration of the House bill to investigate the sale of the Atlantic and

NEWS NOTES FROM THE UNIVERSITY

Chapel Hill, N. C., March 7.—The 'varsity and scrub baseball teams lined up for the first practice game of the season Friday afternoon. The scrimmage lasted seven innings and came out 3 to 1 in favor of the 'varsity. The line-up for the first string was: Lee and Sloan, pitchers; Witherington, catcher; Calmes, first base; Hasty, second; Lindsay, short; Edawrds, third base; Hackney, center field; Page, left field; McLean, right field. The prospects are that Carolina will have a fast infield and will be weak on batteries. Clancy has announced his intention to try to develop a team that can win by its hitting and baserunning, things that he says win the majority of college games.

First Debate April 22.

The first round of the pentangular debate between Carolina, Virginia, Vanderbilt, Tulane and Georgia will come off this spring, probably on April 22. The question is the national income tax. Each college will debate both sides of the query. Carolina has the negative against Virginia and the affirmative against her time honored enemy, Georgia. Carolina won from both Georgia and Tulane last spring and from the University of Pennsylvania last fall. A strong crowd has entered for the preliminary contest that will be held this week and the prospects are that Carolina will be able to keep to the high standard that she has established during the last ten years.

Y. M. C. A. Officers.

The officers for the Y. M. C. A. have been nominated for next year as follows: J. C. Lockart, president; Fred Drane, vice president; C. E. Norman, secretary; W. D. Barbee, treasurer. The officers for the year that is fast drawing to its close are: E. W. Turlington, president; D. B. Bryan, vice president; H. C. Smith, secretary; George Graham, treasurer.

1910 Class Reunion.

The class of 1901 is preparing to have its decennial reunion at commencement 1911. The secretary asks those who were members of the class of 1901 at any time during the four years of college life, to please communicate with him, whether they can attend commencement or not. A complete class record for the ten years will be published after commencement. The secretary is R. O. E. Davis, bureau of soils, Washington, D. C.

E. A. BROWN ANNOUNCES FOR COMMISSIONER PUBLIC SAFETY

Well Known Business Man Makes An Address to The People Outlining His Platform of Principles.

E. A. Brown, a well known business man of Greensboro, is the first candidate for Commissioner to give the newspapers his announcement. Mr. Brown's announcement appears in The Telegram this morning, together with an article in which he sets forth at some length his views in regard to the manner in which he believes the office he seeks should be filled and states very clearly what he proposes to strive to do if elected to the position of Commissioner of Public Safety. Mr. Brown has been engaged in business successfully for many years and was at one time an alderman of this city. He is recognized as a man well qualified by ability and experience to fill the position he seeks.

Mr. Brown's signed statement to the public follows:

Mr. Brown's Address to the People.

To the People of Greensboro:—

A number of citizens have urged me to be a candidate for one of the commissionerships of the city, and after very mature consideration I have concluded to run for the position of Commissioner of Public Safety, which includes the fire, police, sanitary and inspection departments.

While I opposed the adoption of the new charter yet I did so not because of my opposition to a commission form of government, as I publicly stated at the time, but for other reasons, most of which have been removed by amendment. I am now and have been for years in favor of a commission form of government for municipalities. My opposition to some features of the proposed charter has not embarrassed me with the gentlemen who advocated it. They have given me credit for good faith and sincerity.

If elected I shall stand for progress. It would be my ambition to advance our city in every way in my power and to make Greensboro the most desirable place in North Carolina in which to live, become prosperous and raise a family. Many improvements can be made in all the departments under the Commissioner of Public Safety and it would be my study to make these improvements as rapidly as possible.

It will be my ambition to enforce the health and sanitary laws so that Greensboro shall become the healthiest and cleanest place in the State and to supervise and systematize the police department so as to make it the ideal and model system of the State.

I believe, also, that by making additions and improvements to our already excellent fire department we can get a better insurance rate and save thousands of dollars to our property holders in the matter of insurance.

I shall also stand for an economical administration of my department and the city's other affairs, and as an evidence of my position on that I would call attention to the fact that I sug-

Municipal Court Had Light Docket

D. W. Holder was arraigned in Municipal court yesterday morning on the charge of keeping a house of ill-fame. Holder is in charge of the place on South Ashe street known as the "Dome" and has been in court before on a similar charge. Nellie Brewer, one of the inmates, furnished information to the effect that the place was used for immoral purposes. The case was continued until this morning at the request of the defendant.

Mongrell Phillips was arraigned on the charge of larceny, a nol pros being taken by the State.

Little Damage From Sleet Storm

For a time yesterday afternoon the electric, telephone, telegraph and fire alarm systems were in danger of being disabled as the wires were coated with sleet and the prospects were good for a still heavier coat before night. A heavy coat of sleet is almost certain to break a number of wires. Last night, so far as is known, only one wire was broken in Greensboro and this was a fire alarm wire. The big bell struck one and Superintendent Cox soon had the wire repaired, having the apparatus so arranged that he can tell immediately where the trouble is when anything goes wrong with the system.

YESTERDAY BUSY DAY WITH COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

Yesterday's session of the County Commissioners was devoted principally to road matters, several requests for roads and improvements being brought to the attention of the board. A road in Monroe township, for which a petition has previously been filed, was granted and ordered opened according to law. This thoroughfare is to be 25 feet wide.

The contractors who are putting the asphalt covering on Spring Garden street, extended, were paid in full for the work done on the road between Greensboro and High Point. Spring Garden street is being treated with asphalt from the city limits to the park.

The board ordered a voucher for $50 be forwarded to the captors of Moses Speaks as soon as their names could be ascertained, this being the reward offered by the county for the arrest of Speaks.

The board declined the proposition to take over the auditorium and use it for county purposes.

Clerk J. W. Forbis announced the appointment of Cyrus A. Wharton as a member of the board to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of J. A. Davidson. Mr. Wharton will probably be sworn in at an adjourned meeting to be held on next Monday. It is hardly probable that a permanent chairman will be elected by the board until the regular April meeting. W. C. Tucker, who is now serving as temporary chairman, will qquite likely be selected as chairman.

E. D. Steele, of High Point, laid before the board the proposition of Mr. Gould to donate $5,000 towards the cost of macadamizing the road from High Point to the Randolph line, this road running through Mr. Gould's hunting preserve. No action was taken as the county has work mapped out for several roads. As soon as these are completed this proposition will be accepted and it is hoped to have the work done by next winter.

The board will meet this morning to inspect the new iron bridge recently constructed across North Buffalo on Summit avenue, extended. This bridge has just been completed and the commissioners will see if the work was properly done before accepting the bridge from the contractors.

An adjourned session will be held next Monday for the purpose of electing township commissioners to have charge of the roads in the several townships. The new road law for the county says that the county commissioners shall appoint three road commissioners for each township, these commissioners to have entire charge of the repair work on the roads in their respective townships. The county board will be vested with power to designate and macadam roads as formerly, the power of the township commissioners being simply to keep the roads in repair.

Rheumatism and Blood Diseases

The cause of rheumatism is excess uric acid in the blood. To cure rheumatism this acid must be expelled from the system. Rheumatism is an internal disease and requires an internal remedy. Rubbing with oils and liniments may ease the pain, but they will no more cure rheumatism than paint will change the fiber of rotten wood.

Cures Rheumatism To Stay Cured.

Science has discovered a perfect and complete cure called Rheumacide. Tested in hundreds of cases, it has effected marvelous cures. Rheumacide removes the cause, gets at the joints from the inside, sweeps the poisons out of the system, tones up the stomach, regulates the bowels and kidneys. Sold by druggists at 50c. and $1; in the tablet form at 25c. and 50c., by mail. Booklet free. Bobbitt Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

NIP IT IN THE BUD.

First Appearance of Dandruff a Forerunner of Future Baldness.

That such is the case has been conclusively proven by scientific research. Prof. Unna, the noted European skin specialist, declares that dandruff is the burrowed-up cuticle of the scalp, caused by parasites destroying the vitality in the hair bulb. The hair becomes lifeless, and, in time, falls out. This can be prevented.

Newbro's Herpicide kills this dandruff germ, and restores the hair to its natural softness and abundancy.

Herpicide is now used by thousands of people—all satisfied that it is the most wonderful hair preparation on the market to-day.

HOW TO CURE ECZEMA, ITCH AND ALL SKIN DISEASES

Don't suffer a moment longer with Eczema, or any form of skin or blood troubles. Don't scratch or rub the skin. Just apply Hancock Sulphur Compound to the affected spots and it will stop the itching at once, and cure the trouble permanently. One 50c bottle will cure that prevalent trouble, Common Itch. Nothing cures skin troubles so quickly as Hancock Sulphur Compound. To beautify the complexion and remove black heads and pimples, use Hancock Sulphur Ointment, 25c. Mrs. Evelyn Garst, of Salem, Va., writes: "Three years ago I had a rough place on my cheek, it would burn and itch. I was fearful it might be of a cancerous nature. I used different preparations, but nothing ever helped it. One bottle of Sulphur Compound cured me completely. I recommend it to any one having any skin disease." Taking No Chances.

An old man who had led a sinful life was dying, and his wife sent for a nearby preacher to pray with him.

The preacher spent some time praying and talking, and finally the old man said, "What do you want me to do, parson?"

"Renounce the devil, renounce the devil," replied the preacher.

"Well, but, parson," protested the dying man, "I ain't in position to make any enemies."

Shooting to Kill.

Poetry, it is said, at the present time is somewhat of a drug on the market, as a certain Scotchman and would be Bobby Burns found out to his cost when he tried to dispose of it—a thing, by the way, which he never did.

"I wish, dear," he remarked to his sister one day, "that you would take this latest poem of mine to your husband and ask him what he thinks of its merits."

His sister willingly agreed to do so and that evening took the poetical brain wave in question to her husband, saying: "You are such a good judge of poetry, George. I wish you would just run your eye through this poem of my brother's and tell me what you think of it."

The long suffering husband, who had waded through too many scintillations of the kind on previous occasions, took it up with a sigh and commenced to read it through. The poem was entitled "I Wonder Whether He'll Miss Me."

The good fellow read it right through from beginning to end.

Then he handed it back to his wife, remarking sadly, "He ought never to be trusted with firearms again if he does."

A Fierce Night Alarm

is the hoarse, startling cough of a child, suddenly attacked by croup. Often it aroused Lewis Chamblin of Manchester, O., (R. R. No. 2) for their four children were greatly subject to croup. "Sometimes in severe attacks," he wrote "we were afraid they would die, but since we proved what a certain remedy Dr. King's New Discovery is, we have no fear. We rely on it for croup and for coughs, colds or any throat or lung trouble." So do thousands of others. So may you. Took His Medicine.

A famous actor will never take medicine, and his medical man was often obliged to resort to stratagem to impose a dose upon him. There is a play in which the hero is sentenced to drink a cup of poison. The actor in question was playing this character one night and had given directions to have the cup filled with port wine. But when he came to drink it what was his horror to find it contained a dose of senna! He could not throw it away, as he had to hold the goblet upside down to show his persecutors he had drained every drop of it. Our hero drank the medicine, but he never forgave his medical man, as was proved at his death, for he died without paying his bill.

MacDougal-Dougal decided to have the piano sent on in advance. He didn't want to take it up with him, for it was a somewhat bulky package, so he dispatched it jubilantly before he left town.

When he arrived in Scotland he was met by his trusty retainer.

"Well, did the piano arrive safely?" he asked.

Very Brief.

A record of brevity in a holiday correspondence was established by a Frenchman in the eighteenth century. Voltaire and Piton, the epigrammatist, exchanged challenges to write the shortest possible letter. So, when Voltaire was starting on a journey, he wrote to Piton, "Eo rus," which is the complete Latin for "I am going to the country." Piton's answer was just "I"—complete Latin for "Go!"

In business correspondence the record is divided between Victor Hugo, who, anxious to know how his "Les Miserables" was going, wrote to the publisher, "?" and the publisher, who triumphantly replied, "!"

A Servile House of Lords.

When King Henry VIII.'s name was spoken in his presence in the house of lords every peer prostrated himself with Asiatic servility. An entry in the records of the house gives the substance of a speech delivered by the chancellor on Jan. 16, 1541, in which the king's goodness and wisdom are extolled, and it tells us that whenever his majesty was mentioned, "which happened often," all the lords prostrated themselves, bowing to the ground as one man.

Why He Wept.

A medieval sultan had such an alarmingly grotesque and ugly face that he had all the mirrors removed from his palace so that he might avoid the pain of seeing his own features.

BROKE INTO VIOLENT SOBBING.

This sultan called on his grand vizier one day and by accident happened to catch sight of his reflection. His hideousness overpowered him, and he broke into violent sobbing. In this outburst the vizier promptly joined. Finally the sultan calmed down, wiped his eyes and got ready to smoke and talk, but not so the vizier. He sobbed on and on. His master, tapping his slipper impatiently on the cushions, waited for him to cease.

HE SOBBED ON.

At length the sultan got angry and exclaimed:

"Why do you weep longer than I, vizier?"

"Alas," the grand vizier replied, "you wept, O commander of the faithful, because you saw your face but for an instant, but I see it all day and every day."

Today.

Say not tomorrow. Today is your own
To parcel as you will.
For who can tell that when the day has flown
He shall be living still?

Oh, blest is he whose daily balance sheet
Brings perfect work to view,
Whose closing day leaves no task incomplete
For other hands to do!

Tomorrow's but a jack-o'-lantern sprite
That flees the laggard's clasp.
Today's the power whose hand of gracious might Holds fortune in its grasp.

Picked Out the Largest.

There was a good but grouchy shortstop in one of the minor league clubs a few years ago who had a grudge against an umpire. Before the game the player bragged to his teammates of what he would do to the umpire if the umpire started anything on the field. There was no trouble, it happened, and when the club got back to the clubhouse the shortstop told his teammates how lucky the umpire was that he did not try to renew the trouble between them.

"I was ready for him," said the shortstop, "for I would have laid him out. I have two large pool balls in my pocket I brought out from the hotel, and I'd have soaked him with them. They were the largest I could find, too, for I picked out the fourteen and the fifteen."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Worrying the Golfer.

After the bungling golf beginner missed the ball seven times the caddy held up his hand.

"There's a man ganging across in front of ye," he said.

"What if he is?" retorted the novice, very red from his exertions. "I didn't tell him to!"

"Ye maun cry 'Fore!' if there's anybody in the way when ye're gaun tae hit the ba'."

"That's all very well," exclaimed the novice angrily, "but how am I to know when I'm going to hit the ball?"

A Hot Bird.

There was a queer prank played by several members of a Walnut street club on a fellow member who a few days ago made the rather rash announcement that he never so forgot himself as to become intoxicated.

The friends of "the man with the iron will," as he was at once named, determined to prove that he had made a false boast. So he was invited to attend a banquet at a fashionable hotel. Sparkling wine flowed freely, and he very soon "forgot." Then his friends paid for a room in the fourth floor. The "man with the iron will" was put to bed.

His friends smeared his body with vaseline and then, that he might not take cold, rolled him in a mass of feathers obtained by slitting open a pair of pillows. They turned on the steam heat full force and left. In about three hours "the man with the iron will" stirred uneasily. In a moment his eyes opened.

In a bewildered fashion he glanced at his hands and saw that he was covered with feathers. He gasped.

Then a thought struck him, and he muttered, "This must be hades and I am a bird."—Philadelphia Times.

Forgetting Himself.

An elderly gentleman who knew something of law lived in an Irish village where no lawyers had ever penetrated and was in the habit of making the wills of his neighbors.

At an early hour one morning he was aroused from his slumber by a knocking at his gate and, putting his head out of the window, he asked who was there.

"It's me, your honor—Paddy Flaherty. I could not get a wink of sleep thinking of the will I have made."

"What's the matter with the will?" asked the lawyer.

"Matter, indeed!" replied Pat. "Shure, I've not left myself a three legged stool to sit upon!"

SHE DID IT HERSELF.

It Was a Good Job, Too, but Her Husband Didn't Appreciate It.

A Philadelphia man who may be designated as Mr. Blank was asked by his wife the other day to aid in removing inside shutters from windows throughout the house so that they could be washed. Being in a hurry, he asked his better half to defer the matter until his return from the office.

"I'll do it myself," was her retort.

"Don't," was Mr. B.'s counsel as he departed; "women don't understand such work."

This of course only more firmly decided Mrs. Blank to go ahead, and when Blank returned that night he found the shutters down. His wife was nursing several lacerated fingers, but she wore a triumphant air. "The screwdriver slipped once or twice," she explained in response to his inquiring glance at her bandaged digits.

"Screwdriver slipped!" repeated Mr. B. in a dazed tone. "Great snakes, woman! You don't mean to say you unscrewed all the shutter hinges?"

"Of course," said his wife complacently. "What other way could I get the shutters down?"

For answer Blank lifed a shutter and pulled the pin out of one of the hinges, showing that the taking down of each shutter only involved the removal of two pins. When he figured that there were ten pairs of shutters and each pair required the driving of sixteen screws to put them up he swore while his wife wept.

A Generous Jury.

A certain sergeant charged with killing a man was tried for murder. After the evidence was in and the speeches made the jury retired to deliberate. Presently word came that the jury had agreed and had framed a verdict. The judge ordered the jury into the courtroom and asked for the verdict.

"We find," read the foreman, "that the defendant is guilty of murder and assess his punishment at ninety-nine years and life imprisonment."

"Go back and write another verdict," ordered the judge.

Presently the jury returned with the verdict of life imprisonment.

The sergeant shook hands with all the jurors.

"He seems pleased," said a bystander to the bailiff. "Why is he shaking hands with the men who convicted him?"

"Why," was the reply, "he is thanking them for taking ninety-nine years off his sentence."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

WHERE HIS THOUGHTS WERE

The mother of the first child went into the nursery and found her husband gazing earnestly upon the baby. Overcome by this evidence of tender father-love, tears filled her eyes. Her arms stole softly about his neck. He started at her touch, murmuring dreamily, Dearest, I can't understand how they can sell this crib for only $8.00.

There is curiosity in Chicago as to whether Carter Harrison can or cannot return.

Speaking of the hat pin as a deadly weapon, it must be admitted that it canont be classed as a concealed weapon.

Senator Bailey decided that proving an exception to the rule that "none resign" was a distasteful role, so he concluded to return without delay.

One reason given in explanation of Joe Bailey's resignation is that the Texas Senator is afflicted with nervousness. Joe may have badly shattered nerves, but he has on several occasions had the nerve to vote wrong. As a rule, a man like that hangs on to an office with the grip of a bull dog.

The National Child Labor Conference convenes in seventh annual session in Birmingham March 9th, 10th and 11th. This will doubtless be the most largely attended and important meeting in the history of the Conference. Theodore Roosevelt, Senator Borah of Idaho, Miss Jane Addams of Chicago and other distinguished Americans will be among the speakers.

The health authorities of Illinois want to vaccinate the people of Zion City, the "perfect city" founded by John Alexander Dowie. The Zionists object to vaccination and have announced that they will resist to the death the efforts of the health officers. It seems that in order to have a "perfect city" the Zionists ought to take steps to keep out smallpox.

GREENSBORO MUST HAVE SMALL INDUSTRIES.

The future prosperity and growth of Greensboro depends on the development of contiguous territory, on the extension of its wholesale and retail trade, and on the establishment of industries here — chiefly, we believe, upon the latter. The development of the agricultural interests of Guilford and adjoining counties will be worth much to this city, and a constantly expanding and increasing trade with the people and the retailers of a large territory would, also, add greatly to the importance and the growth of Greensboro. These things the city has, in a measure, already realized; and the foundation for large industrial interests has been laid; but growth, development, expansion of all these interests is desirable and must become a certainty of the future.

This city must have more industries, and it is especially necessary that work be done to secure them during the next few years. For the best interests of the city we believe that small manufactories will best serve the purposes of growth and development here at present. Let no one despise the small industry, and pass it by in the effort to secure the big plant. Small manufacturing establishments are worth more to a city, in proportion to their size, than large establishments. They help to make a solid and prosperous city. The big plants never, anywhere, operate continuously. They are shut down for a large part of the time. This is especially true of the various branches of the iron and steel and allied industries. Small industries are not only more continuously in operation, but when they close down fewer men are deprived of employment and the result is not so disastrous to the business of a city. The small establishment may be able to find a market for a limited product when the big plant could not market enough of its products to justify operation. This fact is much in the favor of the small plant and enables it to continue business at times when the large plant in the same line is forced to suspend operations.

Again, diversified manufacturing, like diversified agriculture, is always desirable. The city which makes and sells a large number of different lines will generally be found to be the more prosperous city, in comparison with a city manufacturing one line or a few lines. It is true that some of the one idea manufacturing cities have grown great making and marketing one line or a few lines, at most; but a careful examination of conditions in these places, except at the periodical high tide of prosperity for the particular line under consideration, will disclose the fact that general business conditions in the one idea city are never so satisfactory as in the city with diversified industries.

Greensboro should not neglect the small industry. This city needs the little but successful plant. Not alone because it is usually a valuable asset from the biginning, but because small industries often develop into large ones; and in the industrial world the businesses which count are not those which begin on a large scale and decrease in magnitude but those which begin on a small scale and grow surely and successfully to large proportions. Such industries are well founded and they withstand the stress of business depression and financial disaster.

Greensboro must have more industries. If large ones can be secured, with a fair prospect of succeeding here, get them by all means; but let us not overlook the little manufactory. Nine times in ten it will prove a success from its inception; and, if rightly managed, will grow and prosper continuously and indefinitely. By and by it may become the big industry, the marvel of the city. However, it is not to be expected, nor to be desired, that all small industries should develop to large proportions. There is a place and will continue to be a place in the scheme of our industrial economy for a great many small plants, regardless of the fact that monopolies and combinations have wiped out competition in some lines and have either utterly destroyed the small business or destroyed its independent existence.

The small industry is the thing for Greensboro at present. Let us go after it and bring it into the corporate limits of a place unequalled as a field for its operation.

NEWSPAPER OPINION.

Man Killing In South Carolina.

The right enforcement of the laws against crimes of violence is a slow and painful process in South Carolina but the juries are doing their duty with a better understanding of their oaths and with a larger appreciation of the necessity of defending the peace as the years pass. It may be that in a short time, comparatively, the scourge of murder that has so long afflicted the State will receive as much attention from the people as strange and fatal maladies receive through the boards of health that represent the people.

Were the dogs in this State or the bulls or the mules to bite or gore or kick to death 200 men and women and children each year, universal horror would be aroused and the vicious animals would speedily be exterminated. Nevertheless we allow vicious men to kill each year more than 200 of their fellowmen in South Carolina and one risks nothing in saying that when a man kills another he seldom has so much reasonable ground of provocation as a mule has that flings out its heels at an enemy. The poor brutes too often have been the objects of cruelty when they show their resentment.—The Columbia State.

The Old and New.

Although the tactics of the obstructionist senators prevented the enactment of the greatest and best measure of the session—the one upon which President Taft had set his heart, for the institution of reciprocal trade with Canada—it will undoubtedly be passed by the new Congress in the extra session.

The best interests of the country will be served if they determine to pass the bill at once in order to assist the Canadian friends of reciprocity in the fight they are now making for the measure against a bitter opposition of the protected manufacturing interests in the Dominion.—New York Herald.

Spreading the Knowledge of Good Roads.

The Catawba County News, of Norton, N. C., is performing a real educational mission. It is searching for the twenty-four most popular and representative men in the county, and intends taking them over the State where the best highways are to be found, to set the good roads bee to buzzing in their bonnets.—Richmond Virginian.

FIREMEN CALLED TO BLAZING CHIMNEY.

An alarm from box 52 yesterday morning about 8 o'clock called the firemen to a house on Austin street. They found a blazing chimney but there was no need for firefighting.

WHAT NORTH CAROLINA EDITORS ARE SAYING.

Put the Intimidators On the Roads.

When citizens threaten people who give evidence against "blind tigers" or any other violators of the law it is time that rigid investigations be made and some of those who would thwart justice be given a sentence on the county roads.—Reidsville Review.

Railroads Should Not Wait For Orders.

When the special session of the General Assembly ratified the compromise by which the big roads now charge 2 1-2 cents instead of 2 1-4 cents, the big claim of the railroads was that the big need in North Carolina was rather for better service than for cheaper passenger rates, and the people believed that better service would follow the adjustment as to rates. That expectation has been realized in some parts of the State on most of the big roads, but soon thereafter the Southern took off one of its trains, between Goldsboro and Greensboro, and did not restore it again until, in the first days of the session, Senator Graham of Orange, introduced a resolution requiring that train leaving Greensboro about 9:30 a. m. to be restored. Then the Southern officials went before the Corporation Commission and agreed to restore the train, but to run it only between Greensboro and Raleigh. It should go on to Goldsboro, to give that end of the road the same service that is given between Raleigh and Greensboro.

Last week there were hearings before the Corporation Commission by delegations desiring better service on the Seaboard between Weldon and Hamlet. The service there is no better than it was a dozen years ago—indeed the delegation from Weldon, who addressed the Commission, said that ten or fifteen years ago there was a train known as "the Atlanta Special," which, after reaching Weldon on the Raleigh and Gaston railroad, ran on the Atlantic Coast Line to Richmond and the North, and local passengers were carried on local freights. The petitions to run the shoofly on to Weldon from Norlina is so clearly reasonable that the Commission will no doubt order it to make the run, but why should the Seaboard wait to be ordered to give a service that it should give on its own initiative? If a person wishes to come to Raleigh from Weldon or other point North of Norlina, he cannot do so and return on the same day. By continuing the "shoofly" on to Weldon, that portion of the road from Norlina to Weldon would be given good service, and in the long run it would pay. The contention is that it would not pay to continue to run that train. Here is the answer to that contention:

"To run the train daily from and to Norlina, it costs $12.28 and the fuel; to extend to Weldon it would cost $16.99 and three tons of coal, which costs the railroad $2.75 delivered on the engine. In other words, the additional cost of running the train to Weldon would be $12.96. The only other charges are what the company will have to pay any way as fixed charges except additional station service, water service, telegraph service, and it is submitted that these are negligible.

"The company submitted figures to show that the train does not pay, and says that it costs to run the train 69 cents per train mile. In this cost they made a rental charge of $10 per day for locomotive and $5 per day each for three cars, a total of $25 per day; in other words 2-5 of this amount, $10, is charged against this train. These figures ought not to convince the Commission that the train does not pay.

"The figures are equally unfair when the credit of the train is considered. The train is only credited with passenger fares sold in the territory and ending at Norlina, but credit is denied for any part of the tickets sold out of the territory although to points in the territory on the train. It is submitted that if a fair mathematical test is made, it will be found that the train will pay.

"The railroad seems not to consider the business it would get. People would travel when it is convenient to return who now do not go. Many use the Atlantic Coast Line to Raleigh who would prefer the Seaboard Air Line if it gave equal facilities."

Railroads make their biggest mistakes by not, on their own motion, giving better service and going after business like other concerns that have to hustle for trade.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Passenger Coach Hits Switch Engine

Last night while the Winston train was being turned around preparatory to leaving on the final trip for Winston the rear coach was sideswiped by a freight engine. The coach was badly damaged, but was not thrown from the track. The train had gone around the "Y" and was backing on the main line near the freight depot. A freight engine had taken a switch but had not cleared the track. So the passenger bumped into the side of the engine, the rear platform of the coach being badly torn up and the plank covering one sill being torn off along the entire side.

The second coach was butted into but was not badly damaged. The rear coach was left here for repairs. It was lucky that no one was in the coach for the collison shook the coach considerably.

Much Interest in Revival Meetings

The revival meetings at Westminster Presbyterian church continue with increasing interest. Despite the inclement weather there were good congregations yesterday afternoon and last night and much interest was shown by those present.

In the afternoon Dr. A. R. Shaw preached on "Personal Work" and at night he preached from the text—Romans 13:11 "And that, knowing the time, that now it is high time to awake out of sleep; for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed." It had been announced that Dr. Shaw would preach to parents at the night service, but on account of the weather it was decided to postpone this sermon. If the weather is good the sermon will be preached at tonight's service.

Services this afternoon at 3 o'clock and tonight at 7:30. A cordial invitation is extended the public to attend.

Trogdon Made Fine Map of Draper.

W. B. Trogdon, Jr., has on display in the window of Barker Bros., a map that is attracting considerable attention. The map is from a survey of the town of Draper by Mr. Trogdon and is regarded by many as one of the most complete maps of the kind ever seen here. Each residence is shown with the number of rooms and the distance between each house and the house number. Every outline is distinct and it is no trouble to find any particular house or street wanted. 1t

The Primary Bill.

Senator London, for the election law committee, reported without prejudice the Hobgood state-wide primary bill for state officers and United States senators and moved that it be put upon its immediate passage. The motion failed by a vote of 23 to 20, the bill taking its place on the calendar.

The Anti-Trust Bill Substitute Passes.

On motion of Senator Hicks the Senate took up the Turlington House anti-trust bill and Senator Graham reported that the juidiciary was equally divided on it and also on the substitute, nine members voting each way.

Senator Bassett made an extended argument, announcing that he stood for the business interests of the state as much as any man and he believed in conservatism and fair play, but saw no necessity for additional radical legislation. He said he realized that the present state anti-trust law has defects, but that the committee substitute provides all the required machinery for remedying these defects, and is the olive branch which will bring about a reconciliation. The Federal anti-trust law,

Store Breakers Got Fifty Cents

Monday night someone entered the store of the Grissom-Sykes Drug Company and rifled the small cash drawer at the soda fountain. An effort was made to get inside the large cash register, but the thieves did not succeed in their undertaking. Entrance was effected by prying open the iron blind of a rear window. The storebreakers first tried to force the rear door, but were foiled. They left by way of the door, leaving it standing open. Only half a dollar was missed.

Her Protector

An American Wife In Berlin Shows Ability to Take Care of Herself

By SARAH EHRLICH

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When Commander Haverslaugh, U. S. N., went to Berlin as naval attache at the imperial court his daughter, Louise, was just nineteen years old. Though so young, she had been a heart smasher among the cadets at the Naval academy, where her father had been stationed for three years, besides having gone through several campaigns at West Point. She could not help flirting—not that she went out of her way to find any one to flirt with; indeed, there was nothing aggressive about her. The trouble was that every young fellow she met found in her something that acted as an incentive for him to make love to her.

Louise being of a marriageable age while her father was at Berlin, she very naturally married one of the young Germans she met at court, Baron Carl von Hilderschoff, a major in the army and connected with the general staff. Before Commander Haverslaugh would consent to the marriage he told the baron that Louise was a natural flirt, but that her flirtations were innocent and he need have no fear of her disgracing him or herself. The commander exacted a promise that the baron would trust her, relying entirely on her sense of honor and self respect to choose the right path.

It was not long after the marriage that Baron von Hilderschoff was ordered away from Berlin on some temporary duty. There was one man in Berlin, Count Gethart, who had been attentive to Louise before her marriage. This man the baron disliked and distrusted. Before leaving the capital he said to his intimate friend, Captain Manteufel:

"I am obliged to leave my young wife for a few weeks here, and I wish to leave her in your charge. You see, I don't wish her to be lonely. There is one man here I don't like. As soon as I am gone he will attempt to be devoted to her. I wish you to be so attentive to her that he will have no opportunity. You understand?"

"Perfectly. And I feel very much flattered at your confidence in me. Who is the man?"

"Count Gethart."

"H'm! You are quite right; he is a dangerous man. Is your wife to know of your placing her in my care?"

"Well, no. I don't suppose there will be any necessity for you to interfere in the matter. It is only in case Gethart becomes aggressive, you know."

"I see. Well, old fellow, I promise to do the best I can in the matter, though I do not expect any action on my part will be necessary."

Von Hilderschoff departed, and Manteufel called upon the baroness. Indeed, he made several calls, and to give an excuse for doing so he told her that her husband, fearing she would be lonely during his absence, had asked him to drop in once in awhile to cheer her up.

Now, Louise, being an American with plenty of American shrewdness, suspected that something had passed between her husband and his friend of which she had not been made aware by the latter. If the captain's good offices were to be confined to keeping her from being lonely her husband would have told her that he had made such a request of his friend. When a woman wishes to get a secret she usually succeeds. It was not long before she had wormed out of Manteufel that he had been commissioned to protect her from Count Gethart.

Commander Haverslaugh's warning had not been heeded.

It so happened that Von Gethart met his old flame at a social function the very evening after Manteufel had "let the cat out of the bag." She was very gracious to him and danced with him. Manteufel saw them together and as soon as the dance was over joined them. Louise straightway dismissed Gethart and walked away on the arm of Manteufel.

Manteufel treated her during the rest of the evening as he would have treated a schoolgirl who had been placed under his orders and had been disobedient. She seemed to be very penitent and promised not to do so any more. Not only this—the next day she wrote a note to her protector expressing more penitence.

That the baroness' penitence was only skin deep was evident from the fact that she saw as much of Von Gethart as of Manteufel. The latter, still insensible to the fact that his interest in his charge was rather for himself than her husband, protested to the baroness against her accepting attentions from a man her husband disliked and distrusted. The baroness claimed that she could not decline them without giving offense. From this moment the bitter feelings that had entered the breast of Manteufel were turned principally against the man instead of the woman.

Meanwhile the baroness was writing loving letters to her husband, in which she never failed to mention the many kind acts of his friend Manteufel. She also wrote that she had met Gethart at a social function and that he had called upon her. This, she said, had seemed to excite the disapprobation of Manteufel. She did not like to repulse Gethart, fearing to make trouble. She longed for the day when her husband would return and relieve her of an embarrassing position. To this the baron replied that he would be at home on a certain date, arriving on a midnight train.

The evening of Von Hilderschoff's expected arrival the baroness wrote a note to her protector and one to the man from whom she was being protected, asking them to call upon her. They met. The scowl that lowered upon Manteufel's brow was like a thunderstorm in the Alps. Believing that he acted in the interest of his friend instead of from the promptings of jealousy, forgetting that he had not been commissioned to pick a quarrel with the man his friend disliked, he walked right into a trap and before he had been in Von Gethart's presence half an hour had in the most gentlemanly manner in the world insulted him. It happened in this wise:

"I do not think," said the baroness, "that your men in Germany have the respect, the reverence, for women our men in America have."

"You are right, baroness," said Manteufel, looking fiercely at Gethart. "We have here in Berlin men who would not hesitate to take advantage of a woman left unprotected by her husband."

A brief silence marked this throwing down the gauntlet, after which the lady turned the conversation into other channels. A few minutes later Gethart bowed himself out, and the baroness indicated to Manteufel that she would prefer to be alone. As soon as he had gone she called in a manservant and said to him:

"Heinrich, I have a very delicate job for you."

"What is it, baroness?"

"Count Gethart and Captain Manteufel are about to fight a duel. I wish you to inform me as to the time and place of the meeting."

"I could not well do that, baroness, except that the valet of Count von Gethart is my friend. This may help me out."

At 12 midnight Baron von Hilderschoff returned and found his wife waiting to greet him.

"Well," he said after exhausting ordinary matters that had occurred during his absence, "how about this Von Gethart? Has he been offensive in his attentions?"

"Not at all, but your friend Captain Manteufel has been more loyal to you during your absence than has been necessary."

"How so?"

"He evidently knows that you don't like the count and has assumed to keep him away from me."

"So?"

"Yes. They met here this evening. Manteufel insulted Von Gethart, and they are going to fight."

"So?" repeated the baron, opening his eyes very wide.

"Yes. The affair will be the talk of Berlin."

"Great heaven!" exclaimed the baron.

"We must interfere."

"How?"

"I have sent Heinrich to discover the time and place. I am expecting him back every moment."

"Himmel, may he be successful!"

It was 2 o'clock when Heinrich returned, and all he knew was that a carriage had been ordered by Count von Gethart to be at his door at 4 o'clock in the morning. But this was not enough. The baron and his wife ordered their own carriage to be ready at half past 3, drove to a point near the count's residence, saw him leave and followed him to a grove near the city, where his carriage stopped and he and a companion alighted. Another carriage had just arrived. The baron and baroness alighted some distance from the others. The day was breaking when they saw two men taking positions for a duel. Then they advanced.

"Gentlemen," cried the baron, "will you kindly inform me as to the cause of this quarrel?"

Both men, astonished, stood mute.

"I have been informed by the baroness," continued Von Hilderschoff, "that there has been trouble between you two. If my wife has anything to do with it I beg you to put up your swords. Neither of you need be concerned about her. I alone assume to defend her."

Both the men addressed looked as if they wished the earth would open and swallow them, but it was Manteufel who seemed especially crushed. He had gone on the field believing that he was protecting his friend's wife but cherished a hope that knowledge of the quarrel might never reach his friend.

"Gentlemen," said the baroness with a certain sweetness that never deserted her, "we should be pleased to see you both at dinner this evening."

"You are very kind, but"— began the count.

"Really, baroness, you must excuse"— began the captain. But the lady simply put them both in the position of being ungallant if they declined, and both gave a reluctant acceptance.

The party left the field in the conveyances by which they had come. After a brief nap the baron, at his wife's request, called upon Gethart and Manteufel and persuaded them to meet as friends at her house.

"Something of this may leak out," he said, "and if you two men meet at dinner under my roof the story will be nipped in the bud."

This was an argument that struck home with both the men addressed, and in the evening they met at the dinner under at least the guise of ordinary friendliness.

The next day the baroness sent Captain Manteufel the letters he had written her during her husband's absence, and, reading them over, he was astonished to see that he had shown every evidence of jealousy and infatuation for his charge.

BLITZ WAS MODEST.

Yet Webster Wouldn't Give the Magician a Treasury Job.

During the presidency of Mr. Tyler I had occasion to call on Daniel Webster, then secretary of state.

Glancing at my card, he turned and readily extended his hand with, "Welcome, signor! No hocus pocus among my papers," covering them with his arms.

After explaining to him my object I received the required information. We laughed and chatted a few minutes, and I was about to retire when I mentioned that I was an applicant for office and hoped I could rely upon his influence in the matter.

"You, a magician, an office seeker, signor?"

"There is only one, sir, I aspire to; all others I should refuse without regard to their emoluments."

"Well, what one is that?" questioned the great statesman in his deep and powerful voice.

"Counting the treasury notes, Mr. Webster."

"The treasury notes, signor?"

"Yes, sir. You might give me 100,000 to count and watch me closely, but you would find only 75,000 when I returned them."

"Signor," he exclaimed, with lively animation, "there is no chance for you; there are better magicians here than you. For there would not be 50,000 left after their counting!"—From "Life and Adventures of Signor Blitz."

In the Wrong Church.

A Cleveland man recently told this story of the Rev. Stephen H. Tyng, famous New York divine of a generation ago:

A wealthy man came to him and said he wanted to rent one of the most expensive pews in the church. "But," he added, "I'll only take it on one condition—you mustn't expect me to do any church work."

The eminent rector smiled. "My friend," he replied, "you have come to the wrong church. You belong four blocks down the street, in the Church of the Heavenly Rest." — Cleveland Leader.

A Changed Man.

Admiral Capps, addressing a temperance society, told a story of one of the best men he had ever known, who quickly went from bad to worse because of excessive drinking until he became a total wreck.

"One evening," said the admiral, "this prematurely old, thin, worn out man with red rimmed eyes, said, 'You are a good, true, noble woman Jenny, and should have married a better man than I am.'

"Looking at him and thinking of what he once had been she quickly answered, 'I did, James.'"—New York Tribune.

A Religious Innovation.

A certain well brought up little girl who lives in the near vicinity of Rittenhouse square yawned at the breakfast table last Sunday morning and ventured a polite proposition to her mother.

"I really don't feel at all like going to church this morning," she remarked. "Can't we just send cards?"—Philadelphia Times.

Attacks School Principal.

A severe attack on school principal, Chas. B. Allen, of Sylvania, Ga., is thus told by him. "For more than three years," he writes, "I suffered indescribable torture from rheumatism, liver and stomach trouble and diseased kidneys. All remedies failed till I used Electric Bitters, but four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me completely." Such results are common. Thousands bless them for curing stomach trouble, female complaints, kidney disorders, biliousness, and for new health and vigor. Try them. Only 50c. at Fariss-Klutz Drug Co.

FELL ON HIS PILLOW.

Then Came a Joyous Time For the Skating Rink Patrons.

When Mr. Homer Davenport was a boy roller skating reached Silverton. In his book, "The Country Boy," he tells of his plan to learn without getting hurt, as he thought falling about the skating rink was no joke. He borrowed a pair of overalls of the stoutest man in the village and a long pillow from his mother's bed and believed the game as good as won when he entered the door of the rink:

I lowered the pillow into the seat of the overalls after I had put them on and then got a boy to hold the pillow up against my back while I put my vest over it, and I dived out into the thick of the skaters. To my astonishment, I didn't fall. I leaned back and tried to fall once to see how it would be, and I really couldn't. I'd been skating fifteen minutes when I did fall, but fell forward and slammed my hands on the floor.

An elderly lady, who had had some troubles of her own that afternoon, skated up to me and told me she thought perhaps we went at it too fast. So we were leaning against the wall, talking over the scientific points of it when I gave the audience a rare treat.

While leaning there, talking, all at once my feet, that were close together, started and rolled out toward the middle of the room. I don't think I bent a finger, but I fell exactly like a tree, and lo and behold, the pillow burst. It must have been five minutes before they got through laughing all over the house. In that time the feathers were so thick they followed in a boiling streak after every skater.

The manager declared a recess of ten minutes while they swept out the hall, and at this point came another big laugh, as after three men had been sweeping twenty minutes they hadn't got over three feathers out into the street.

Some fellow suggested sprinkling, so they did, but most of them were in the air and wouldn't come down to be sprinkled, so they had to close the rink for the afternoon.

The manager of the rink tried to collect damages from my father, and I think there was a compromise made.

Thought He Needed Them.

Miss Amelia Austin listened with breathless attention to Mrs. Amasa Hunting's radiant account of the doings of James Hunting, her husband's younger brother, who had left Wobrook-in-the-Hills in his youth and had become a millionaire.

"Where is Jim this summer?" Miss Amelia inquired at the end of the recital.

"He has gone abroad for baths," replied Mrs. Hunting.

"I ain't one mite surprised to hear that," Miss Amelia said. "His mother never could make him wash his neck."

Woman's Beauty

Some women retain their beauty to an advanced age. But women, who regularly endure pain, age rapidly, for suffering leaves its lasting marks on them.

Nearly all women suffer more or less with some form of female trouble. It should not be neglected. Avoid the pain—treat yourself at home by taking Cardui, as thousands of other women have done. Begin at once and give Cardui a fair trial.

TAKE CARDUI

J 36

It Will Help You

Mrs. Katie Burlison, Goreville, Ill., tried Cardui and writes: "I suffered with female troubles, and was so sick I could not stand on my feet. Finally I began to take Cardui, and soon began to mend. Now I am able to do all my housework and am in much better health than I was before." Try it.

The Original Encyclopedia.

The first real encyclopedia was Pliny's "Natural History." This work was an extensive one, numbering some thirty-seven volumes and dealing with all the then known facts of the world. Pliny, who died A. D. 79, collected the data for his work in his leisure intervals while engaged in public affairs. The "Natural History" was for its time an amazing production, treated of some 20,000 facts and was of very high authority throughout the entire middle ages. Forty-three editions of the work were printed before the year 1536, and no scholar's library was considered complete without it.—New York American.

JOSH GAVE THE CUP.

But He Couldn't Make Good on the Bear Proposition.

Josh Billings, the gaunt, long haired philosopher, was one of the most genial of men. Many of his ill spelled sayings were meaty, and one of them at least was worthy of Solomon. It was:

"The best way for a father to train his boy in the way he should go is to go that way himself."

Some years ago, when Josh was staying in the White mountains, he was charmed by a beautiful spring of clear, icy cold water which bubbled up at the side of the highway. He made the carriage stop and, removing his slouch hat, lay down on his face and drank a deep, refreshing draft. In compliment to him the residents in the neighborhood named the fountain "Josh Billings' spring," and it has thus been known ever since.

At the nearest village Josh bought a huge tin cup and scratched on its side the warning:

Whoever steals this fine big cup
By a big black bear will be eat up.
JOSH BILLINGS.

This cup was placed on a broad, flat stone within convenient reach. A few days later the humorist, having nursed a consuming thirst, walked all the way to the spring to quench the same. To his dismay and anger the utensil was gone, and on a sapling near at hand was tacked a bit of paper with the penciled words:

Dear Josh, your cup is gone, I know not where.
Now, if you please, trot out your big black bear.

Fortunately for the poet he did not sign his name or give any clew to his identity.—Los Angeles Times.

He Meant Well.

When Earl Spencer was lord lieutenant of Ireland the people of Dublin called the beautiful countess, one of the loveliest women of her time, "Spenser's Faerie Queene."

But when their excellencies were about to return to England Irish gallantry was shown in a characteristic way. At the farewell banquet in their honor an Irish gentleman who was anxious to pay the beautiful countess a compliment got up and said, with much fervor and many bows:

"We all hope soon to see you back again, you and the work of art by your side."

Willing to Be Fined.

There was an actor who worked for a manager who had a mania for fining the members of his company. For a bad makeup, for lateness, for noise in the wings, for a hundred things, the players were bilked from a quarter to $2. The worst of all the fines was one of 10 cents for failure to return "properties," for this was a duty that every one, and this actor in particular, continually forgot.

In a financial drama one night the supply of stage money ran out, and the manager loaned our actor $8 or $9 in real bills to use in the next scene.

The manager said sternly to the actor the following Saturday:

"By the way, Booth, you haven't returned that $9 I gave you in act three Monday night."

"Never mind," said the actor. "Just fine me a dime and call it square."—Philadelphia Ledger.

This is what Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Ledbetter said on January 22:

"Gentlemen: Last night our daughter, age five years, was taken suddenly with pneumonia. We used 1-2 box of Mother's Joy as directed, and today she is almost well, thanks to the good remedy so near at hand and so cheap. This was a violent case, and hope you success. 520 Laura avenue."

WHISTLER IN A RAGE.

Lady Meux Made Him Fairly Splutter With Anger.

Whistler painted three portraits of Lady Meux, one of which, the "Sable Picture of Lady Meux," is missing. That one was the third for which Lady Meux sat to the eccentric artist. The other two are described in the Pennell's life of the artist as among his most distinguished portraits. Lady Meux "was handsome, of a more luxuriant type than the women who usually sat to him," and he "found for her harmonies appropriate to her beauty. The first was an 'Arrangement In White and Black,' which few people have seen. There is a sumptuousness in the black of the shadowy background and the velvet gown, in the white of the fur of the long cloak, that Whistler never surpassed. Whistler was pleased with it and spoke of it as his 'beautiful Black Lady.' Lady Meux was so well satisfied that she at once sat for a second portrait. This time the 'harmony' was in 'Flesh Color and Pink,' afterward changed to 'Pink and Gray.'"

The missing portrait was smaller. So far as the artist's biographers could find out, it was never finished. The explanation is probably to be found in this story, quoted in the "Life" from Mr. Harper Pennington:

"The only time I saw Jimmy 'stumped' for a reply was at a sitting of Lady Meux (for the portrait in sables). For some reason Jimmy became nervous — exasperated — and impertinent. Touched by something he had said, her ladyship turned softly toward him and remarked quite softly, 'See here, Jimmy Whistler, you keep a civil tongue in that head of yours or I will have in some one to finish those portraits you have made of me!' with the faintest emphasis on 'finish.' Jimmy fairly danced with rage. He came up to Lady Meux, his long brush tightly grasped and actually quivering in his hand, held tight against his side. He stammered, spluttered and finally gasped out: 'How dare you? How dare you?' But that, after all, was not an answer, was it? Lady Meux did not sit again. Jimmy never spoke of the incident afterward, and I was sorry to have witnessed it."

The Snail and the Screw.

It is no doubt true that nearly all human inventions have been suggested by natural objects. M. Charles Fremont of the French School of Mines points out an interesting example in the case of the screw, the fundamental idea of which, he believes, was suggested to primitive man by the spiral shell of the edible snail. It was not the shape of the shell that suggested the screw, but the spiral motion which it is necessary to give to the body of the snail in order to withdraw it from the shell. This at once showed that an object of a screw shape embedded in a solid powerfully resisted attempts to withdraw it by a straight pull. The hint was enough, and the screw became one of the earliest of man's inventions.—Youth's Companion.

Real Accommodating.

Olga, Swedish maid of all work, had curiously defined ideas regarding property rights, although she had no intention of being at all dishonest. On one occasion when it was Olga's afternoon out her mistress said to her when she was about to depart from the house:

"Olga, I can't find those handsome silk stockings of mine. Have you seen them?"

"Yes, ma'am, I have them on. I know you stay home today and do not need them. You can have a pair of mine to wear yoost around home if you haf none."—Minneapolis Journal.

He Wanted the Job.

To the colored man who made application for work he listened and awaited the finish of the tale of the applicant's qualifications for the job, then stalled in this manner: "Well, I'd like to give you the place, but I'm afraid I can't for you tell me you are married. I have special reasons for wanting to give this position to a single man." "Why, boss," exclaimed the willing worker, "if dat's de on'y trouble, Ah kin git a divohce between now an' when you all's ready foh me to start in."—Argonaut.

An Insulting Addition.

An irate citizen started for the office of his local newspaper for the purpose of clubbing the editor. One of his friends asked him what the editor had done to him, and he said:

"I sent him a letter signed 'Honestas' and he printed it, but added another 's.'"—Minneapolis Journal.

Warning to Railroad Men

Look out for severe and even dangerous kidney and bladder trouble resulting from years of railroading. Geo. E. Bell, 639 Third St., Fort Wayne, Ind., was many years a conductor on the Nickel Plate. He says: "Twenty years of railroading left my kidneys in terrible condition. There was a continual pain across my back and hips and my kidneys gave me much distress, and the action of my bladder was frequent and most painful. I got a supply of Foley Kidney Pills and the first bottle made a wonderful improvement and four bottles cured me completely. Since being cured I have recommended Foley Kidney Pills to many of my railroad friends." Howard Gardner.

BOILED BANKNOTES.

Caustic Soda Used to Destroy Worn Out French Currency.

Everybody knows that wornout banknotes in this country are destroyed by maceration at the treasury department, but the manner in which the notes of the Bank of France are destroyed is probably not so well known.

At the head office of the Bank of France there is a permanent tribunal before which all doubtful paper is brought. The tribunal writes "anule" on the faces of the banknotes. The judgment is countersigned by the treasurer, and they are taken to the cellars in which the printing office is situated. In the presence of the bank's official they are brought out for annihilation. Distributed one by one into baskets, the condemned notes are emptied into a great cylinder half filled with water and caustic soda.

The orifice of the cylinder is then locked and set in motion. It turns for two days, at the end of which time the officials who presided at the beginning of the operation return to witness the end of the notes.

Furnished with a long spoon, a workman thrusts into the depths of the cylinder and withdraws a thick, steaming liquid, which he pours into a thin basin. Another workman approaches with a similar spoon, with which he stirs the stuff around to make sure not a remnant has been left of the notes. When the banknote soup has been reduced to paste it is sold for $1 a hundred kilos, about 200 pounds, although the paper at one time cost $5 for two pounds.—Washington Herald.

KIND CAPTAIN KIDD.

His Wickedness and Buried Treasure Both Said to Be Myths.

Doomed to an infamy undeserved, his name reddened with crimes he never committed and made wildly romantic by tales of treasure which he did not bury, Captain William Kidd is fairly entitled to the sympathy of posterity and the apologies of all the ballad makers and alleged historians who have obscured the facts in a cloud of fable.

Fate has played the strangest tricks with the memory of this seventeenth century seafarer, who never cut a throat nor made a victim walk the plank, who was no more than an amateur pirate in an era when this interesting profession was in its heyday and who was hanged at Execution dock for the excessively unromantic crime of cracking the skull of his gunner with a wooden bucket because, forsooth, his majesty's officers were unable to prove their charges of piracy.

As for the riches of Captain Kidd, the original documents in his case, preserved among the state papers of the public record office in London, relate with much detail what booty he had and what he did with it. Alas, they reveal the futurity of the searches after the stout sea chest buried above high water mark. The only authentic Kidd treasure was dug up and inventoried more than 200 years ago, nor has the slightest clew to any other been found since then.—"Romances of Buried Treasure" in Metropolitan Magazine.

A Special Medicine For Kidney Ailments.

Many elderly people have found in Foley's Kidney Remedy a quick relief and permanent benefit from kidney and bladder ailments and from annoying urinary irregularities due to advancing years. Isaac N. Legislature Will Complete Itis Work-he stated, is correcting the evils about which so much has been written and said and the substitute will aid in stamping out any wrong.

Senator Hartsell also argued for the substitute, declaring that it is a modification of the Turlington bill, but will prove sufficient.

Senator Hobgood spoke against the substitute and for the bill. He offered an amendment designed to have the effect of the Turlington bill.

Senator Graham ably defended the committee substitute and during his argument was interrupted to answer a number of questions propounded by Senators Green, Rascoe, Cotten and Baggett. He contended that any corporation ought to be allowed to engage in business in this state without being required to make oath that they will not violate the law and that this substitute eliminates the oath provision of the Turlington bill. He believed corporations should be treated just as fair as any individual.

Senator Long advocated the Turlington bill and Senator Barham favored the substitute, which he asserted is not aimed at any particular corporation, but applies to all corporations doing business in North Carolina and will not tend to drive capital from the state.

Senator Baggett, speaking for the Turlington bill, said he saw no unfairness in requiring a corporation desiring to do business in this state to take an oath not to violate the business laws of North Carolina.

Senator Boyden made a strong characteristic speech, saying he was a friend of the American Tobacco Company and that he felt sure no other corporation is doing so much to advance the prosperity and welfare of the state. He paid a high tribute to the Dukes for their initiative genius and declared he would be the last man in North Carolina to vote to impede the progressiveness of the gentlemen of the American Tobacco Company who are developing the water powers and other resources of the state in a marvelous manner.

Senators Holden and Green heartily favored the Turlington bill, believing it to be the only effective anti-trust legislation possible at this late day of the general assembly.

Senator Rascoe said this is not a matter of legislation against the American Tobacco Company but is a matter of carrying out the pledges of the Democratic party and he would therefore give his support to the Turlington bill.

He stated that the Democrats have had so much to say about trusts that they should either put up or shut up.

Senator Bennett, arising to a question of personal privilege and in his inimitable way remarked that he came to Raleigh under contract with the state to stay here and work for sixty days. He had done that and more, too, and had tried to faithfully discharge his duty, but while he had enjoyed the speeches of the lawyer members during that time they had talked him nearly to death and he wanted to go home and raise a crop. He insisted that the senators stop talking and get through with the work and let everybody go home.

Senator Barbour called the previous question and Senator Hobgood explained that his amendment to the substitute was practically the original bill. The chair ruled that such an amendment could not be offered, from which ruling Senator Hobgood appealed, but the Senate by a vote of 24 to 10 sustained the ruling of the chair.

The substitute was then adopted by a vote of 22 to 20 as follows, several senators explaining their votes:

Ayes—Barbour, Barham, Barnes, Bassett, Belamy, Boyden, Cobb, Coxe, Graham, Hartsell, Haymore, Hicks, Hurdle, Johnson, Martin, of Buncombe; McDonald, Pharr, Pinnix, Reinhardt, Starbuck, Sigmon, Williams.

Noes—Armstrong, Baggett, Bennett, Brown, Cotten, Davis, Gardner, Green, Hawkins, Hobgood, Holden, Ivie, Lemmond, London Long, Kitchin, Martin, of Washington; Rascoe, Sikes, Thorne.

It then passed second and third readings unanimously and was sent to the House.

The House.

Speaker Dowd convened the House at 9 o'clock. Prayer by Rev. Mr. Johnson, of Raleigh.

The rollcall was answered by 77 representatives.

Bills Passed Final Reading.

Amend the law of 1909 relative to the withdrawal of securities of insurance companies.

Amend the law relating to reports of guardians.

Require publication of receipts and disbursements of public monies.

Amend the revisal relative to tax values on different classes of stock.

Amend the revisal so as to allow railroads to exchange transportation with certain employees.

E. A. Brown Announces For Commissioner Public Safety

gested the recently adopted amendment to the charter that the commissioners should not be allowed to contract debts beyond current revenue without a vote of the people. I am opposed to excessive floating debts and it will be my policy to prevent these.

I am in favor of good schools and good streets and would do all in my power to improve both, and especially would I see to it that the streets of the city are kept as clean as possible.

I have been in business for twenty-five years and am accustomed to business detail and organization and if elected I will establish my office at the city hall and will devote my entire time and energy to the city's interests, and further, I will assure to all, rich and poor, high and low, the same courteous treatment that they would receive at a bank or other business institution.

I shall engage in no personalities in the campaign and believe that the citizens should calmly consider the question as to who will best administer the city's affairs and then vote accordingly. This is a matter that requires the application of business principles to questions of government.

Respectfully,
E. A. BROWN.
